Talia is stuck indoors feeling bored. Even though it's supposedly spring, there are dark stormy skies outside and it's raining hard. She starts to daydream of the year to come. Suddenly there is a clap of thunder!

"Woof, woof!" Buster howls in fright and covers his ears. He is scared of storms.

"Meow! This isn't spring," moans Coco. "I want it to be summer!"

“I really like all the green growth of spring,” says Talia. “At the end of March, the sun starts to warm the earth. Plants sprout and the trees blossom. Animals wake up from their hibernation, chicks hatch, and lambs and calves are born. I don’t have to wear my winter coat, hat, or gloves anymore, and I can look forward to holidays in the sun,” she says dreamily.

“Yummy!” meows Coco. “And there’s birds to catch!”

“No!” says Talia. “That’s naughty!”

“Ok,” meows Coco. “I will only catch pesky mice this year, I promise.”

“I do love the summer too,” says Talia. “Being outdoors in the fresh air, cycling, and swimming in the lake, climbing trees and picking fruit to eat. There is plenty of food for all the animals and birds too.”

“Woof! Even though I have my summer coat, I can get too hot in the summer,” barks Buster.

“Meow! I love the summer heat,” says Coco. “And there’s lots of mice to chase too.” Talia frowns at Coco.
