

Magda Garguláková • Tomáš Kopecký

WHERE TO? A TRIP AROUND THE NEIGHBORHOOD

Magda Garguláková
Tomáš Kopecký

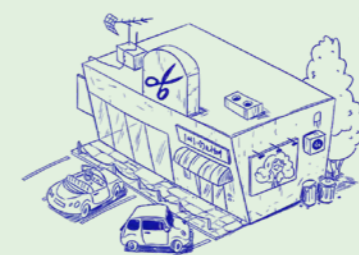

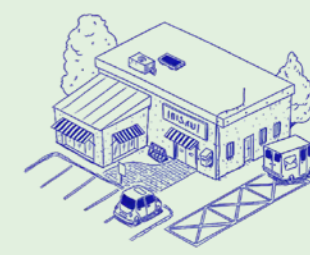

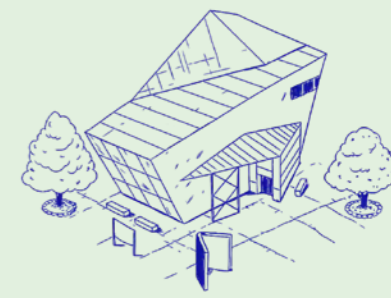

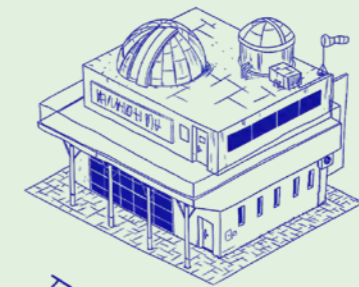

WHERE TO?

A TRIP AROUND THE NEIGHBORHOOD

Albatros

They will photograph me at the
PHOTO STUDIO

I'M IN A HURRY.
I SHOULD HAVE PRINTED
THESE OUT ALREADY.

A photo studio is a fascinating place where all the lights, props, and wonderful photos make you feel like a movie star. As well as taking and printing photos, the studio develops them in a darkroom. Customers come here to pick up their photos or, like me, have their picture taken as a souvenir. A professional photographer has a knack for creating the right atmosphere. Do you want romance or adventure? Since I'm being a sailor, I want a little of each.

READY, ADA?
DON'T MOVE...

NOT MANY PEOPLE KNOW
HOW TO DEVELOP PHOTOS THE OLD WAY.

BOX CAMERA

Many modern cameras are so small that most of us have one in our cell phone. The first cameras were big cabinets. Not until the 20th century did cameras become smaller and better. Now we have reflex cameras where you can change the lenses, Polaroid cameras that print photos immediately, and palm-size digital cameras.

PHOTOGRAPHY CHANGES THE WORLD

These days, practically everyone is a photographer, and taking photos is a part of everyday life. Yet in the early 19th century, when the first photos were made, the new invention caused a sensation. Some people were fascinated by it, while others were scared. Painters were afraid of losing their jobs. As it turned out, though, they had nothing to fear.

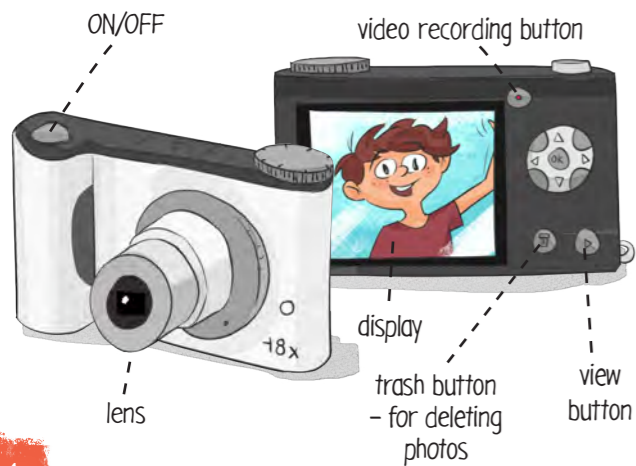

WHERE PICTURES ARE STORED

Depending on the camera, pictures are stored on film or on a digital memory card. Film is developed in a darkroom. Photos on a memory card can be viewed on the digital camera's display.

HOW IT IS DONE

Today's cameras are very easy to operate. Often, you just press a button and – click – the photo can be seen immediately.

It is tempting to zoom in super close on your shot, but keep in mind that with many cameras this reduces its quality.

I'm VINCENT

and I love dinosaurs.

I'd really like to see a Tyrannosaurus rex skeleton.

Do you know where I can find one?

I can see dinosaur bones at the MUSEUM

AT LAST -
A T. REX!

TWO TICKETS,
PLEASE.

EMERGENCY! BAD BEHAVIOR NEAR THE DINOSAURS!

Wow! It's really here! A Tyrannosaurus rex! A museum is an awesome place filled with stories and discoveries. You stumble across something interesting at every turn. You might learn about wigs worn in Ancient Egypt, what the first cars looked like, why sharks keep growing teeth, how the human eye works, or how many shades of green are in a work by a famous painter. There's treasure here for everyone! My favorite is a prehistoric lizard. What's yours?

WHY WE NEED MUSEUMS

Museums teach us about many things. They are also treasure houses for human memories. They collect, examine, and protect objects from the past and the present – some extraordinary, some ordinary (plates, for example). Some objects are exhibited. Most, however, are kept in big storerooms known as “repositories.”

HOW MUSEUMS DIFFER

While some museums are small, others are so large that you can get lost in them. Most museums specialize in a chosen area of human activity, while others focus on a single theme.

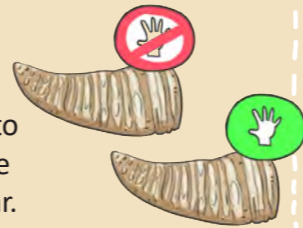

TO TOUCH OR NOT TO TOUCH?

You probably know that most things in museums should not be touched – especially ones of historical or artistic importance, which are very precious. In some cases, there is only one of them in the whole world! However, there are also interactive museums, where you are encouraged to touch the items in it.

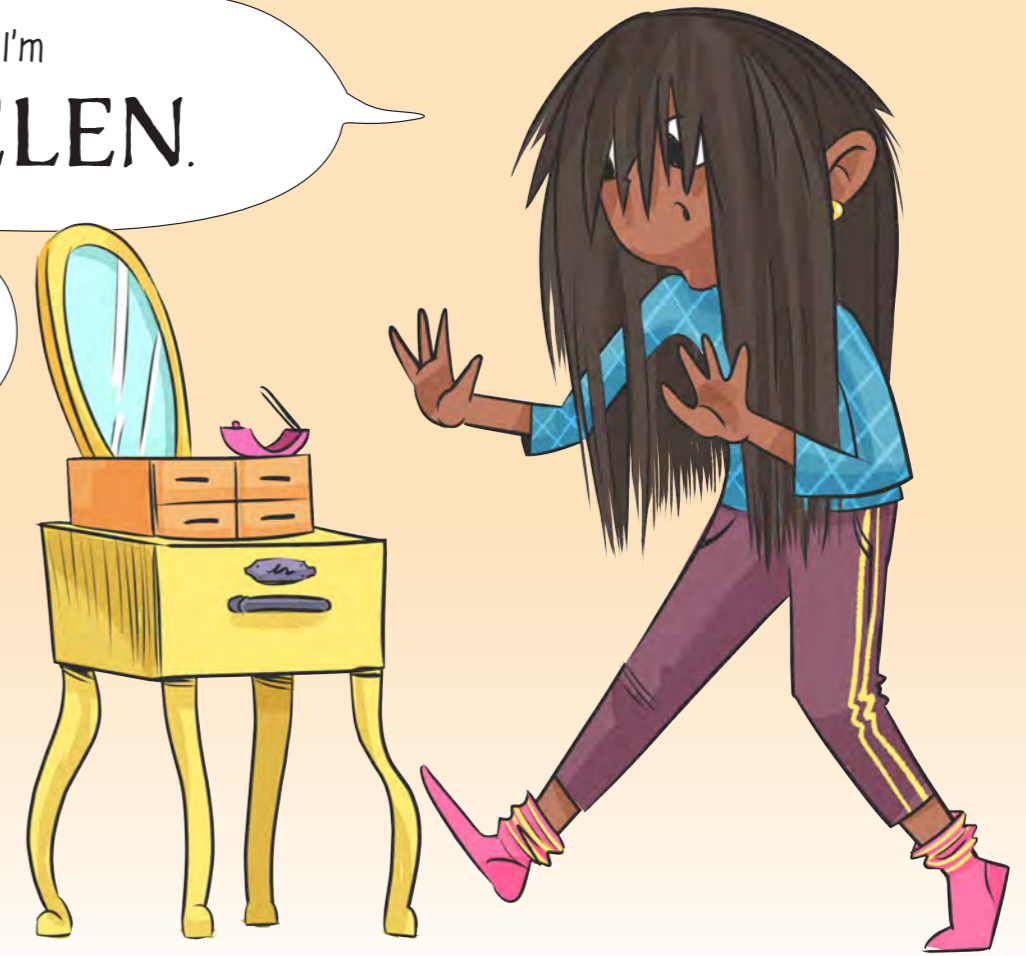

ORIGINAL OR COPY?

Mostly, you can't tell just by looking. We are allowed to touch some copies – like the copy of this mammoth molar.

Hi, I'm HELEN.

My hair is in my eyes, and I can't see.

Where should I go? Help me.

They will cut my hair at the HAIR SALON

A hair salon is a place of transformation. Every customer leaves as a slightly different person. Hair can be cut in many different ways, including all one length, a crew cut, a bob, and in zigzags with each side different. It can also be shaped, waved, and dyed in different ways. A brunette can become a blonde and a blonde a redhead. Hair can be extended, combed in complicated styles, pleated, or simply washed and trimmed often to ensure healthy growth. What do you think of my new bangs? Cool, right?

ALL DONE, HELEN. WHAT DO YOU SAY?

I DON'T KNOW WHETHER TO GET A CREW CUT OR TO JUST DYE IT PURPLE.

CAN YOU COME NEXT WEDNESDAY AT 9 AM?

EACH ERA HAS ITS HAIRCUT

Fashion has existed since prehistoric times. The Ancient Romans and Greeks and Celts all dyed and pleated their hair in complicated styles. In the Baroque and Rococo periods in Europe, wigs were all the rage. They allowed people to change their look several times in one evening. Above all, though, they covered up lice, which were rampant back then. Fortunately, today's hairstyles are much simpler.

DIFFERENT HAIR, DIFFERENT ME

Our hair reveals quite a lot about us. Guess who likes football, and who likes the color purple? Guess who likes to be the center of attention, and who prefers not to stand out? Hair is so distinctive that we always notice someone else's. Perhaps that's why girls and boys alike take such trouble with their own hair.

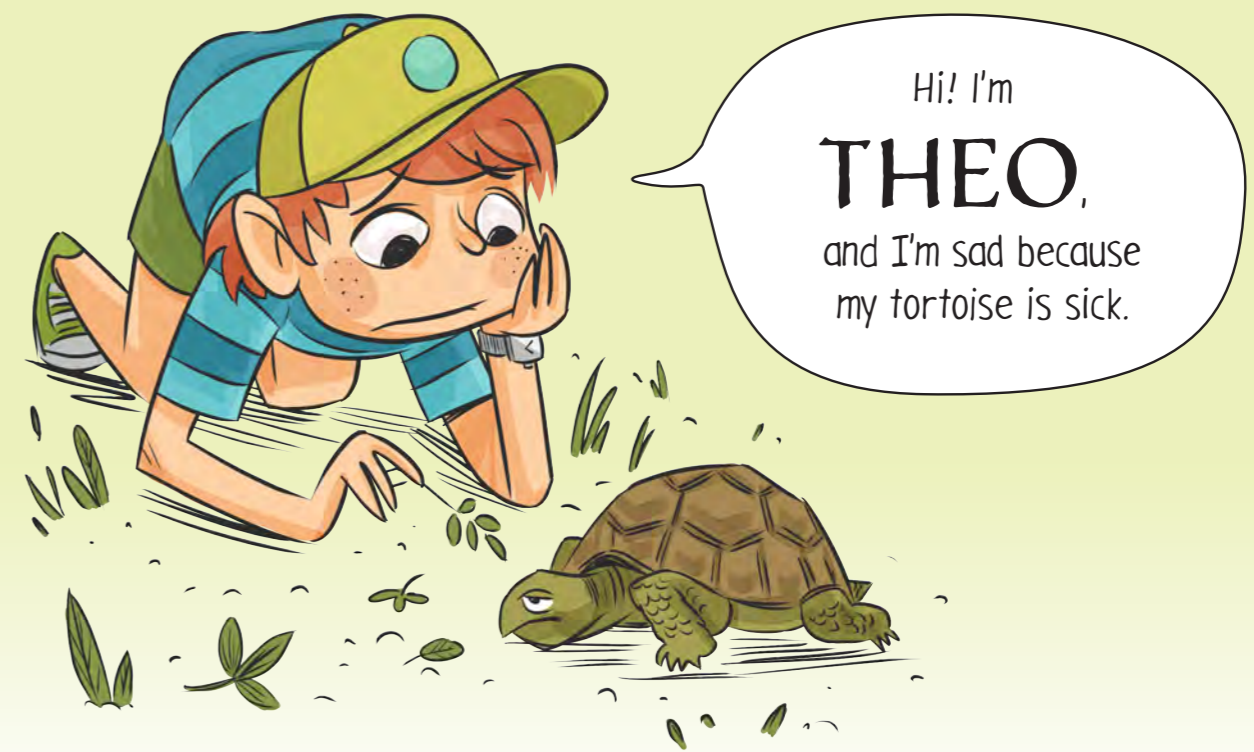

TOOLS FOR HAIRDRESSERS (AND OTHERS)

We must care for our hair every day, even with no hairdresser to help. Our bathroom is our personal salon. Should I wear my hair today in a ponytail, a braid, or long and flowing? We tend to decide based on our mood and on the time we need to get ready. Good thing we have so many tools to help us with washing, brushing, and perfecting.

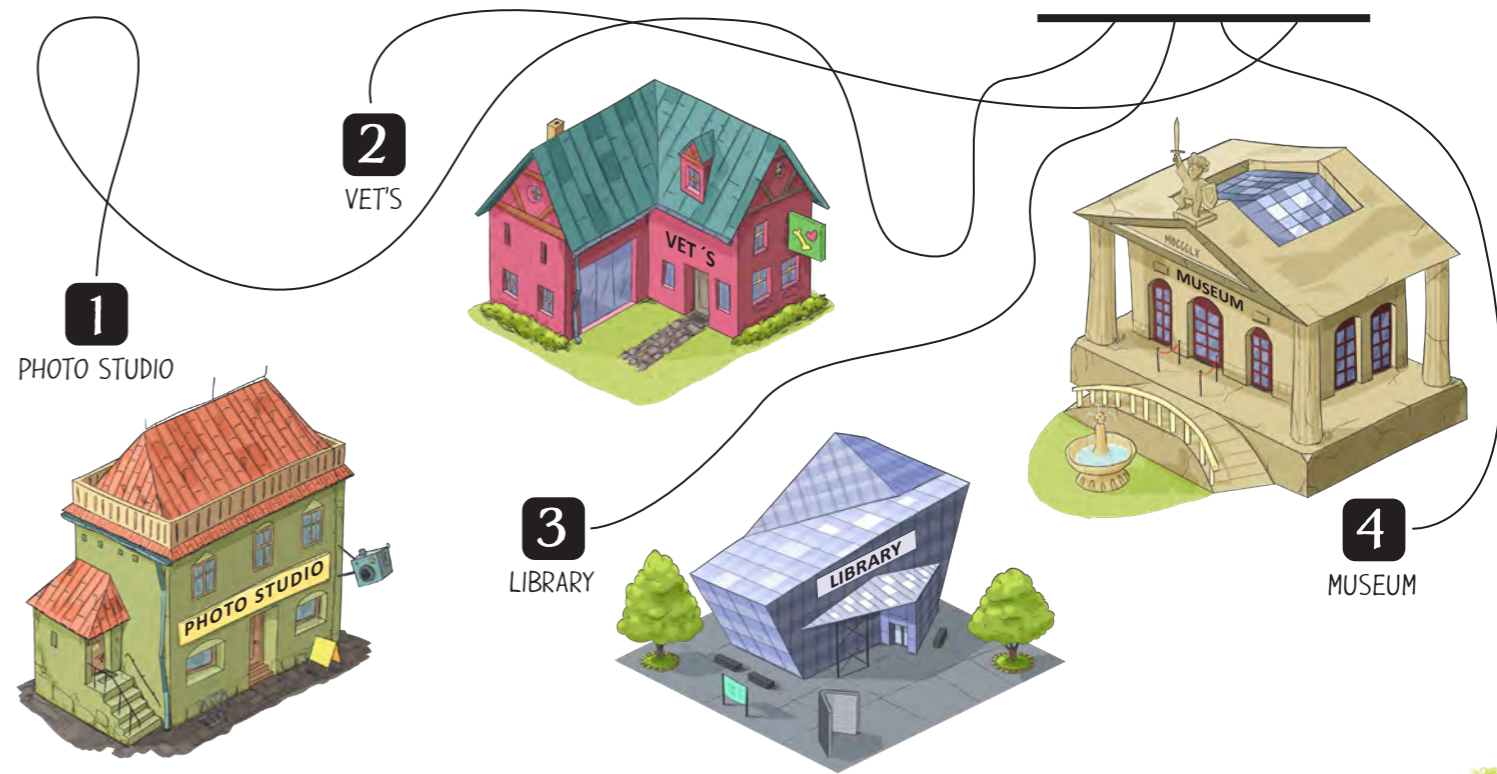

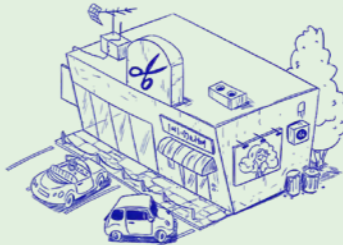

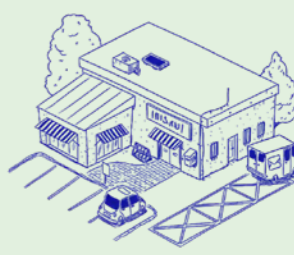

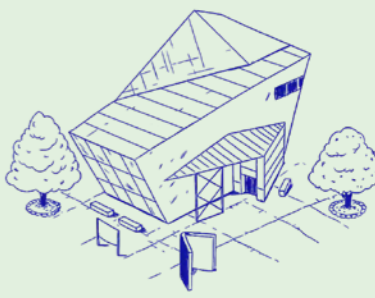

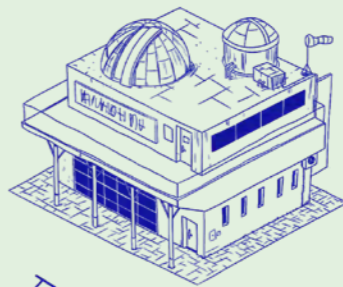

ORNAMENTS

There are loads of these in all imaginable colors and shapes, including clips, scrunchies, clasps, and hairbands. A hairstyle should not only keep its shape but also hold strands of hair in place.

Where should I take her? Tell me...

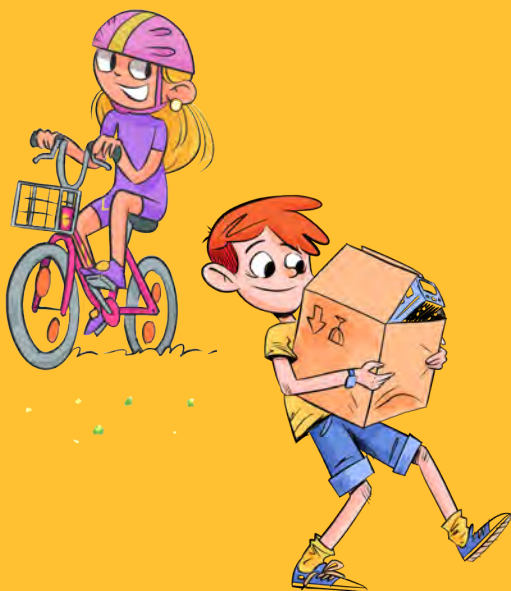

Every day, even the most ordinary day, is full of challenges, adventures, experiences, and tasks big and small. But where should you go to accomplish each task? Join our eight young friends as they learn about different professions and places of interest, from police officers to planetariums.

Where can you send mail? What should you do if your bike gets stolen? And where can you go to see a dinosaur?

Come help us learn where to go!

More info:

- albatros_books_
- Albatros Books
- Albatros Books US

ISBN 978-80-00-07290-6 5 1 7 9 5

9 788000 072906

$17.95
Printed in China
by Leo Paper Group.
www.albatrosbooks.com